CONSUL GORDON SAYS LOSS BIG IF STORY TRUE

British Official Remarks on Peculiarities of Early Reports

If reports from London to the effect that Lord Kitchener is dead are true, England has suffered a loss probably equally as tremendous as that which come through the passing of Lord Roberts, the late brilliant military leader and statesman.

In these few words E. L. S. Gordon local British consul, in substance today expressed his ovinion as to the effects on Great Britain of the reported death of the famous English war secretary for the United Kingdom. Consul Gordon, however, states that in his mind the report of Kitchener's death is a curious one. "What was he doing at sea aboard the Hampshire?" was the question asked by the consul when informed by a representative of the Star-Bulletin of the contents of the overnight despatch. The consul had not read the morning papers. "That is the question which bothers me," he continued. "Also, what was the Hampshire doing near the Orkney islands They are to the north of Scotland and you could not very well say they are in the North sea. The consul admitted he could not understand the report. "But if it is true that he is dead," he said, "his death will be a tremendous loss to England."

Consul Gordon had received no official communications regarding the reported death of Kitchener up to press time today. He informed the likely he will receive no details. It is not customary to inform consuls in matters of this nature, he said. A man upon whom had been conferred many titles of rank and nobility was Horatio Herbert Kitchener, field marshal, garl Kitchener of Khartoum and of Broome, Viscount Broome ton, K. P., P. C., G. C. B., O. M., G. C. S. L., G. C. M. G., G. C. I. R., LL. D., Knight of the First of St. John of lisregard for war correspondents, the British newspapers gave him active support prior to May, 1915. During the winter months the war secretary had announced the "big drive" would begin about the first of May. After the battle of Neuve Chapelle that month reports reached England that the drive had halted owing to a shortage of munitions. A section of the press declared that Kitchener had made a serious mistake in providing large quantities of shrapnel and insufficient high explosives. By a minority of papers it was suggested that he should be displaced as war secretary, and it was agreed that the raising of a big army and supplying munitions at the same time was too great a task for one man. The discussion developed the formation of a coalition cabinet and the creation of the new portfolio of minister of munitions, of which David quered by storming the land ridges Japanese government has completed Lloyd George took charge, while Kitchener remained as war minister.

Without his crowning achievements as the great organizer of the British campaign in the European war, Kitchener had already won wide lish general, 1 colonel, 13 other offiand lasting fame by his many campaigns in Egypt, South Africa and in cers, 350 unwounded and 68 wounded will be established within two

In 1886 he became governor of the Red Sea territories and set in motion a series of raids on the notorious Osman Digna, the dervish in vain, trying to enter German The diet leader. In one of these raids Kitchener's men were flanked and put to trenches. By this time much was heard in England of Kitchener's work in Egypt and when he returned there for a short rest he was received with honor and nominated aide-de-camp of Queen Victoria. With his health recruited, he went back to Egypt where, on the resignation of Sir Francis Grenfell, he was appointed Sirdar (Commander) of the Egyptian army. His really great career dates from that time.
